mated her legislature in the first instance, remodeled the charter, gave larger grants of land, volunteered a loan, and proffered all her liberality upon feasible and satisfactory conditions. This is another equally plain step in the proceeding.

Upon this last charter and grants the present company is based. Men of wealth and reputation, and of enterprise, saw in it a programme of enormous profit, and a result as grand in achievement as unparalleled in speculation. This is as intelligible as the other steps.

THE BIBLICAL ACCOUNT.

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and set and the led them out as far as to Bethauy, and he litted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to puss while the pleased in the analysis of them out as far as to Bethauy, and he litted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to puss while the pleased them. And when he had spoken unto them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven, and set on the right hand of God. And he led them out as far as to Bethauy, and he litted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to puss while the pleased them. And when he had spoken unto them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven, and set he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven, and set he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven, and set of them, of the proceeding.

And when he had spoken unto them, he was parted them out as far as to Bethauy, and he litted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to puss while he heesed them. And it came to puss while he heesed them. And it came to puss while he heesed them. And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld he was taken up; and a cloud received them out of their sight.

This is as intelligible as the other steps.

Before they would engage in the enterprise

Before they would engage in the enterprise at all, it became necessary for them to ascertain the precise condition in which the company stood, the extent to which it was compromised, the amount of its debts, the value of its assets, and the condition of its stock account. To this task they applied themselves diligently for several months. They investigated every matter pertaining to the company, they sifted every proceeding to the bettern.

THE REQUISITE AND METERS (A. C. THE CONTROLLED AND CONTROLLED AND

wherever the company thinks best, whether be-fore or alongside the road or elsewhere. There is no computing the value of these lands; they are the finest soil known for cotton, wheat, corn, are the finest soil known for cotton, wheat, corn, and grapes. Some estimate of their probable yield may be inferred from the fact that the lands along the Illinois Central road, which were offered in market, under the graduating act of Congress, for twenty-five cents per acre, now average sixteen, seventeen, and eighteen dollars, and they are only fit for grain and grazing, in a cold region of country, and are of a quality to be had anywhere else for small prices—whilst the lands on the Texas road are equal to them for cereals, and compose beside a great to them for cereals, and compose beside a great geographical monopoly of the public lands of the world suitable to the growth of cotton. Surely there is nothing approaching this munificence in the history of corporate grants. It is without parallel in legislation as it is incalculable in amount.

ble in amount. The objections which are murmured respecting the right of others to locate land near the road, before it has been built, and that the country is settled and partially taken up for some distance from its eastern terminus, are certainly insignificant in view of the vast dona-tions of the charter. Were not the Illinois lands in market for twenty years before the Central road was built? Is it a question whether a right to float a part of the lands is not better than to be confined in locating the whole within given limits? Be this as it may, the objection is whether coppers shall be ex-changed, or crowns, or five franc pieces, and which is the best mode of making the barter The measure of increase any way is wonderful. Its estimate can only be apprehended by the help of prophecy. Of the lands, we are informed by those who have gone over them, that the half has not been told. The Illinois Central road received only two millions of such lands as she got, and commenced operations with a debt of three millions, and notwithstanding she pays a tax of seven per cent. to the State upon the gross receipts of the road, her stock is selling at one lundred and forty-seven per cent. in the market. The Pacific road commences with a balance sheet as favorable as any chartered company of the kind can ever expect to show. She pays no tax, and has more than four-fold the amount of land, with more than twice the choice of agricultural adaptation. The best informed persons insist that the Pacific Railroad charter would be a speculation with the burdens and diminished gift of lands of the Illinois Central. What must it be free of taxation, and four-fold in endowment! What will it be when the products of continents crowd its depots-

SUNDAY......APRIL 19, 1857.

Hold them to the Issue. This is now the outcry of the pseudo Ame can editors. Hold them to the issue of Amer icanism, and a Know-Nothing victory is certain. It is important, they think, to keep attention fixed upon the point. They are confident that if they could have had the subject considered at all, they would have done exploits at the Presidential election in November last. There are, indeed, only two difficulties in the way the first is to get the attention of the people at get them to like those notions. Both achieve ments are very difficult; the latter more all to their small notions; and the other is, to than the former. The Know-Nothings, so far, have found the difficulties impossible to surmount. They showed some appreciation of the task they undertook at the origin of the organfore the country. Shall Kentucky sustain this ization. They formed a secret society, with a series of mysterious paraphernalia. They assumed an air half comic, half tragic, as they hinted to one man after another, that somethin from the minds of all national men, and all prosvery uncommon and very smart was going on pects from the minds of traitors. We therefore o' nights, in some strange garret or cellar; and thus enticed the crafty and unwary into their to activity and diligence. Their country exlodges. Then, for the first time, they adminis tered their oaths and obligations; and let out the startling fact that foreigners and the Pope were after the country with more than a doz sharp sticks. Old politicians, whose merits had there had been something wrong; and the Protestant always had a suspicion that the Pope was better than the foreigner, from the signifi cant fact that he had been born on American dirt. Exaggerated and frothy declamations in secret lodges, where there was no one to answer them, and a general sympathy and conceit that they had some advantage of great imporance, after they had learned the eigns and grips and were entitled to use the red heart and the cross, and issue signs of distress, almost crazed the poor empty conceit of weak heads.

All this was uccessary to get attention, hold men to the issuc. The means to do so were invented and ingeniously used; and i shows that the brethren saw the difficulty of getting publicattention. To keep their victims after they got them, was another task, more difficult than the first. Well, they swor their disciples; they instructed them; they magnified the horrors that scared them into seeret places. They fixed terrible penalties upon traitors; and invested these pcualties with as many horrors as they could invent. They set captains over their victims to watch them; and then reswore them, and repeated the swearing again and again. They promised offices to the diligent and faithful; and in their system they had emoluments and honors; they had High Grand Presidents, and Scribes, and Committee men. Conventions became Councils, with High Grand Presidents, and an apparatus of official distinction, to give the faithful a taste of ruling Then, they had money. They assumed the power of taxing, which, if executed according to the provisions, they would have had funds enough to buy all they couldn't coax or scare. And, as the whole organization was based on the idea that people must be managed, and that they could be managed because they were cor rupt and venal, the money part of the scheme was of the greatest importance; here were the means to overcome the second great difficulty in their way. They knew it was difficult to get public attention; and they also knew if a man once found what they were at, he would have be sworn over, and watched very closely if he didn't desert. They overcame the first difficulty; that was comparatively easy; but the second proved too stubborn for their genius. The shrick for freedom in the North, scattered the brethren like scared rabbits. All the swear ing and watching was of no avail; instead of pursuing the Pope, Sam's troops took after the negro. The brothren South saw where the faithful North had gone, and they broke in the op posite direction. The oaths, the terrors, the spoils, the swearing and watching broke down. In fact, Sam got the nigger mixed up with the Pope and the foreigner, and instead of sticking to his creed, he began to figure in other questions, and looked all sorts of ways; resolving and repealing, frittering away his erecd until i was gone; aud, in a state of desperation, tried to tack himself on to the Old-Line Whig party, and bank on its credit. There was poor Sam, out at the cibows and down at the heel, begging the Old-Line Whigs, whom he had villified and abused, to take him under their wings, and give him a crumb to save him from starvation.

The experiment is over, the result a ridicu lous explosion; its folly is written in history, and its crimes are the most it will be remembered for. "Keep them to the issue"-fudge! Public attention was given to Know-Nothingism. The people know what it is-and they ecorn it. The chief security the minions of Sam have, is a public neglect. His policy is to hide his features, and fritter away his creed into namby-pamby resolves and stale platitudes that mean nothing. In the free States the Abolitionists have administered on Sam's effects, and appropriated all that would serve a purpose. In the slave States, in order to get rid of the offensive odor, they have sent all his valuables to Maryland, to be buried with his fathers, in that old federal soil. "Keep them to the issue," indeed! Let the dead sleep; especially such It was never made to stand fire, and the modead. None but the good rise before the time. The witch of Endor could only wake up the pious old prophet. She couldn't wake one of her own class from the taint. It is contrary to theology, then, to think of resurrecting Sam. He has had all the attention he deserves, and much to his cost. He can't stand any more.

DOLTHE BALM OF ZANTHOREA, OF East Indian Remo y, is the only sure cure for Diarrhea, Dysenter; cething. Prepared by It. S. Humphrey, Ogden: ourgh. None who have once used this valuable reme ly will again be without it, whether they are home raveling. In time of war, parties do not he enemy is upon them, and then send for their arm and ammunition; but they have their swords girde on, their pistols in their belts, their carbines and mus ets and rifles loaded and ready. That dire and unsatisfied monster, Cholera, is the foo of all mankind; and although, like the deadly rattle suake, he gives all a warning, yet, when his fangs are ouce fixed, few recover. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Armed with the Zanthorea, we may feel secure. For sale by R. A. Robinson & Co., Belt, Talbot & lo., and Raymoud & Patten, Louisville. Price, 25 and 0 cents. mr27 d&w2m

To the Citizens of the United States. CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC AFTER several years experimenting in the manufa ring of Gin, I fortunately succeeded, in the year 184 making a discovery in its manulacture by which I as deprived of all acrid and inflammatory propertie and rendered perfectly pure. My manufactory is at Schiedam, Holland. Afterse ral months' reflection what title to give it, I introduce t to the American public under the name of "Wolfe's Schiedam Arematic Schnapps." Schiedam is the name of the place in Holland where the Gin is mininfactured. cromatic derives its name from the Italian Juniper derry, with which it is flavored, and the word 'Schnapps' is the Germau for drink—Cogne, Draun-Wolfe's Schledam Aromatic Drink. No sooner had ny Schnapps been introduced to the American public and received with approbation, than the liquor-mixer of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia started in pur suit with their mixed and poisonous stuff, under vari ous names-Schiedam Gin, Schledam Schnapps, Lon on Club-House Gin, London Cordial Gin, &c .- and i everal cases my labels have been so perfectly initated with only the addition of a few letters, to plead a techical avoidance of the law, and so carefully prepared. as to impose on careless purchasers. I understand argo quantity has been purchased by the merchant of the Eastern States, on account of the cheapness of the articles. A merchant who participates indirectly n the fraud by selling the sparious articles, is as muc n offender as the principal who planned the impe

Wolfe's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps s made from Barley of the first quality, selected wit reat care from the products of the most celebrated rain-growing districts; is flavored with the essence of he aromatic Juniper Berry of Italy, and is rectified by peculiar process, which expels from the spirit every crld particle.

As a means of preventing and correcting the disgreeable and often dangerous effects produced npon the stomach and bowels by a change of water—a visitation which travelers and settlers, and all unacclimate ersons in the West, the Sonth, and Southwest, are eculiarly llable—the Schledam Aromatic Schnappe rill be found absolutely infullible; while, in cases ropsy, gravel, obstructious of the kidneys, diseases o the bladder, dyspepsia, and general debility, it is renended most emphatically by the most distinguish d members of the medical profession.
It is put up in quart and pint bottles, in cases of or lozen, with the name of the undersigned on the bottle and cork, and a fac simile of his signature on the label. For sale by all respectable druggists and country No. 22 Beaver street, New York. For sale by J. B. Wilder & Co., Wilson & Star

REVER PRAISE A FRIEND

BEFORE YOUR SWEETHEART

RY HERRICH And every julep that he drinks,
May gout and bile and healache be;
And when he strives to calm his pain,
May cholic mingle with his tea. May nightshade cluster round his path, And thirtles shoot and brambles cling; May blistering try scorch his veins, And dog-wood burn, and netties silng

Come all ye innocent ones, who have never been "done," and listen to the advice of one who knows—" Never praise a friend before your sweetheart;" never, out of pure disinter ster of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, ested motives, speak of the talents or good qualities of a friend, unless you want to be fooled. This may appear strange to the uninitiated; but patience, and I will explain. I once had a sweetheart and a friend; and she like all others, was

'More beautiful than the moon on her fourteenth enterprise on the part of our Baptist friends in this city. The population and Walnutstreets, is received the part of our Baptist friends in With glossy black hair that hung in ring-lets around a neck that would have graced a Hebe; cyes of a bright brilliant black, that were always sparkling as if they were ceive the scold's deserts. A little philosop magazines of fun; and her lips, in the words of a few words breathed to heaven for patience quotation just now that will apply. But just think of your sweetheart, and she was all that aud moro. Now for this friend of mine. He was one of those noble, whole-souled, truelearted men, that one meets but seldom, and rizes the more on account of their scarcity. He as sometimes given to writing poetry, and that very good (something I never could do.) In fact, he was one whom it was an honor to eall "friend;" and I, being among the privileged few, felt it to be my bounded duty to expa inte upon his merits to every one that would islen to me. Now, my sweetheart happened to meet him one night at a soiree Liven by one of her friends, and being struck by the quiet, easy dignity of his manner, asked me if I knew him, whereupon I told her "yes," and launched forth into a ng panegyric about his many noble qualities is brilliant talents, &c.; mentioned, also, his s she was remarkably fond of poetry; and having one of his late effusions in my pocket, pull it out and showed it to her, to ratify what I and said. She read it through, and immediate ly expressed a desire to have an introduction i, in the innocence of my heart, imagining is was simply because he was my friend, eagerly proffered to give the introduction. So I went off, got him, brought him over, and introduced him. After a while, finding they were getting along well together, I walked out to take a smoke Coming in again in about half an hour, I dis covered they were still together, and she with eyes riveted upon his, intently listening to his emarks. I then began congratulating myself upon my good fortune; for it always was a source of great satisfaction to me to have my riends liked and esteemed by those I loved Well, the evening passed off in this manner, he lking to her and I enjoying it. The next rening, on going round to see her, who should find but my friend; but I thought nothing of his at the time; so, as we left the house, I be can to question him as to what he thought o liss ——. He began by saying that he hought her the most beautiful young lady he l ever met, and that the beauty of her min exceeded that of her person. e feel rather queer for a little while; but then t all wore off, for I thought it was only the ad miration due her flom every man, for I thought Well, things went on thus for some time. h bing there about as often as I did; in fact, I was fast coming to the conclusion that my friend was a nuisance. One night I asked her if she ould not take a drive the uext ercning. "No," she could'nt go; she was eugaged to take a ride with Mr. ———— (my friend.) Well, wouldn't she go to the concert the next night? "No," she thanked me; nothing would afford er more pleasure than to go with me, but unfortunately she was engaged to go with Mr.

(my friend again.) This was most too much: so I said that I thought she might afford o deprive herself of the exquisite pleasure of Mr. — 's company for one uight in the week at any rate. She made some cutting reply. ! answered. She retorted, and I got my hat, and left. The next day I called to see her, and she sent me word she was not at home; while she was at that moment talking to my friend. This I learned from the boy who auwered the bell, through the medium of a half ollar which I slipped into his hand. I became perate, went home, wrote a note, saying at, "Judging from present appearances, the lationship which has hitherto existed between s had better be discontinued; and if she wer disposed, we would exchange letters, &c., and quit." I received a very short and pithy re all my hopes of futuro happiness were blasted: all inv rose-tinted dreams of pleasure fadeo way. As for my friend, I at first thought of challenging him; but, upon second consideration, I thought that perhaps he might accept and that, poor fellow, he couldn't help it; and leave off as I began: "Young men and bache ors, take a warning by me, and never praise a friend before a sweetheart."

The Spiritual Hand. "Come, let me clutch thee,"

Mr. Willis, a student of divinity in Harvard niversity, has, for a year or two past, been guring as a fourth-proof spiritual medium in inbridge, Bostou, Salem, and various other places in Massachusetts. His reputation was with great success—over 90 persons having at-sached themselves to the Church. The Rev. Lawrence Scientific School, and other geutlemen connected with the University, to attend ne of his private circles in Boston last week Solemnly formed itself around the table the ircle of converts, impressible ladies, incredu ous professors, and medium Willis. For me everything went on successfully. The table was moved, the raps were distinctly given, and some remarkable disclosures of fact and octrine made. But a few of the company were not quite satisfied, and Mr. Willis was anxious o astonish the learned professors with a higher proof of his powers. The lights were extinguished, and the circle waited "in solem silence all." Presently Miss A., who is a bit of a convert to the new faith, was sure that a spiritual hand had touched hers hen Miss A. felt the ghostly fingers. Slowly the spiritual hand stole around the eircle, until it reached Professor Eustis. A touch had suf ficed the others, but he was anxious to make the stranger's better acquaintance. With true Yankee heartiness he shook the spiritual hand with true Yankee warmth he kept shaking it grasped the shadowy flesh more and more tight ly. The fingers struggled to free themselves but the Professor held on till the lights were lit and he saw himself clutching Mr. Willis' naked bot. Miss A. went into spiritual hysterics, and he circle broke up in confusion. This story has come to us through "spiritual ands." If it is true, it would seem to furnish the faculty with an ample excuse for suspending the divinity student from his connection with

A Word to Fretful Wives

There you are, with your month puckered up gain! What's the matter? are your friends all dead? No-well, have you lost every cent you cver owned-no?-are your children sick? your husband cross? have you got the toothche, or the head-ache-or heart-ache! Neithe ence! These young hearts whose sun you galls, of Jackson county, Iowa. On the same ought to be—how you chill them with your day, a mob at Bellevue, Iowa, forcibly enterfrowns and pettishness? No wonder they long ed the jail and took possession of a prisoner, to get out of the house. And now you have accused of murder and counterfeiting, and struck your little child because "he would not hung him. Great excitement prevails in the stop teasing." Friend, that blow fell ou his vicinity. feel it long after he has forgotten it. Many years from now, when your head is laid low in the grave, that blow, given without cause—im-with the same of the state of t never so? Memory points to the days of you girlhood—seldom the lines of anger disfigure our brow then. And the man who won you love thought what a happy home sho will make for me! How sweet it will be to sit down by her side after the eares of the day are over! How beautiful to read for her pleasure—to be repaid by smiles and kisses. And the home was ready, and the bride established—but she proved unworthy of the trust reposed in her stead of meeting care with a hearty laugh, and 'get behind me, Satan," you worried and fretted and begau to tell every little trouble to your husband. It was not womanly; it betrayed weakness both of head and mind! Impercepibly its influence crept into his spirit, chilling it with a worse chill than that of death, till it made a shroud of iron for the disappointed heart, and the charm of love, and family, and home, was gone.

"Was once!"-how often these words drop from your lips. "I was handsome once—I was this, that, the other once"—and why not now You yourself have willed your own destiny— you have chosen the seold's office; you must reeive the scold's deserts. A little philosophy new resolute hope for to-morrow il to-day be stormy-a little self-denial in telling petty rosses—a great deal less selfishness—a desire make home a sanetuary for yourself and lit tle ones as well as your husband-and to-day you had been happier, handsomer, and more be Fretting sister in light affliction, let us ask a ew plain questions. Does a spirit of fault-inding lighten your cares? If your bread is urned to a cinder, does it bring you a good ight, sweet loaf, to sit down and worry abou it? If the baby is cross, does it make him smile like an angel to shake him almost out of existence? If it raius on washing day, wil your anathemas hurry out the sun until he stops right over your clothes line? But if your quick ands turn to the flour barrel to mould another loaf-if you soothe the weeping babe with the sweet words of a mothers' pitying love, if you levote your washing day to some appropri work, how smoothly care will iron down his features, and become your humble slave, instea-of the tyrannical master he would be!

It is not too late yet. Surprise your husbanwith a smile—it will be worth a dollar to see his lance of astonishment; hold the salted water of thoughtfulness in your mouth that you may say nothing unpleasant; and the angel that has een lying prostrate in his heart with folded wings, will begin to flutter, and lift itself heav-enward and look out of his eyes with the love of the olden time, and your home will yet be the paradise you once coveted.
